

Christina Fucci, PsyD, has been a licensed psychologist since 2009. She obtained a Bachelor's of Arts from Wesleyan University in 2002 and a Doctorate of Psychology from the former Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology (now William James College) in 2008. Her training experiences included school psychology, providing therapy at a college counseling center, and providing inpatient treatment at Bradley Hospital on the child and adolescent units. Christina has over 16 years of experience providing therapy and evaluations to a wide variety of clients. Her current professional focus is on conducting neuropsychological/psychological evaluations with both children and adults. She enjoys working with a wide variety of populations, including those with ADHD, ASD, anxiety, depression, OCD, and PTSD. In her spare time, Christina enjoys numerous hobbies, including making music, volleyball, yoga, running, reading, and spending quality time with her children.
